GET 'LEADS' ON DEFENSE WORK AT CLINIC HERE

Industries In Mansfield and District Set Up Contacts For U. S. Orders.

CALL SESSION 'SUCCESS'

OPM Officials Say Path Open For Plants To Get 'Good Share' of Contracts.

By WILLIAM F. MURRAY

Moving on to Toledo, OPM officials directing a defense caravan to find small manufacturers to share in $5,000,000,000 worth of national defense orders, announced that their conference in Mansfield yesterday opened the way for Mansfield and other area industries to get a "good share" of the orders.

Herman H. Lind, Cleveland deputy co-ordinator of the contract distribution division, anounced that at least two working agreements had been made which should result in contracts.

Lind said that two companies, "located between Mansfield and Columbus," which produce heavy machinery parts, had made connections with manufacturers who were going ahead with negotiations for contracts.

C. R. Terry, manager of the Cleveland area of the OPM's division of contract distribution, said that at least 50 prospects of defense contracts had been brought to light for Mansfield area industries by the meeting.

"At least 25 of the prime manufacturers traveling with the caravan," said Terry, "announced that they found at least two prospects each at the conference."

Lind said he was "agreeably surprised" by the meeting. Out of the 100 manufacturers visiting the caravan clinic, more than 85 handed in application blanks for sublet contracts.

"That means they found articles which they could produce," said Lind.

The OPM co-ordinator urged Mansfield industries to embark on a program to secure work for stamping and welding airplane parts and similar work.

"The ingenuity which has made Mansfield a leading producer of electrical equipment," said Lind, "can make it a prime leader in defense work. Mansfield has punch presses and other machinery which could easily be adapted for defense work."

Lind said he had advised one of the city's leading manufacturers to hire a technical engineer and

Industrialists from the Mansfield area went into action yesterday in an attempt to obtain contracts for national defense orders as the OPM defense caravan holding $5,000,000,000 worth of orders stopped at the Mansfield-Leland hotel. The ballroom of the hotel was a scene of continuous activity as manufacturers examined samples and blueprints of articles needed for defense. 1. First Lieut. J. R. 'Invaders' Force Evacuation By Swift Thrust In Maneuvers

(By Associated Press)

Lightning like movements by the first armored division of Lieut.-General Ben Lear's "invading" second army was credited today with forcing Lieut.-General Walter Krueger's third army headquarters to evacuate Lake Charles, La., as nearly 500,000 soldiers of the two armies maneuvered into effective striking positions.

Third army headquarters were kept guessing by the quick disappearance of the armored force after it had thrust southward between the Texas border and the Kisatchie national forest in Louisiana. Extensive airplane reconnaissance failed to reveal whereabouts of the 700 tanks and other hard-striking weapons of the second army's mobile division.

While General Krueger's forces moved cautiously to protect supply lines from possible attack by the armored division, General Lear's second army was faced with making strategic withdrawals of its armored forces.

The withdrawal would protect infantry and cavalry units, spread 75 miles eastward to the Red river, from attack by swiftly-moving third army troops.

The third army held Alexandria, in central Louisiana, and moved strong infantry forces on both flanks of the enemy line toward the north and east. Between the two strong, flank positions, however, was a pocket in which no third army troops were encountered by advance forces of the second army.

General Lear's aim apparently was to force General Krueger's numerically superior army south and westward into Texas where it could be "annihilated" on the open coastal plains.

ORDERS WIFE TO GIVE TESTIMONY

Judge Huston Tells Woman To Describe Shooting Case Under Jury Probe.

Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston today ordered Mrs. Andrew Kozma, 518 North Mulberry street, to testify before the county grand jury in a shooting case involving her husband who allegedly fired a shotgun charge through a window at her Aug. 29 at their home.

Called before the grand jury yesterday as a witness, Mrs. Kozma refused to answer the questions of Prosecutor Harold Lutz. She was taken back into the jury room this morning following the hearing before Judge Huston.

Although police said Mrs. Kozma called them following the shooting, she pleaded with officers not to file charges against her husband and has contended since his arrest that he fired the gun accidentally. He is charged with shooting with intent to wound.

Four fatal accidents in the county were on the calendar for investigation by the jury today as it

Roosevelt Expected To Get Giant New Tax Bill Tonight

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Some $3,553,400,000 worth of bad news for tax payers is expected to be on its way to the White House by nightfall.

It is the record-breaking new defense tax increase bill, and administration leaders were predicting that it would clear its final legislative hurdle in the senate some time today without a major change.

If the yield from the measure lives up to careful advance estimates, total federal tax collections are expected to hit $13,000,000,0400 or more tin the next fiscal year.

A compromise between slightly different versions originally passed by the house and senate, the revised measure was okayed by the house yesterday without a record vote after less than an hour's discussion. Senate majority leader Berkley (D.-Ky.) said it undoubtedly would be given equally prompt approval by the senate.

Imposing the heaviest tax load in the nation's history to help finance the defense program, the bill will virtually triple the taxes of persons in the middle income brackets and will require about 22,000,000 persons to file income tax returns, although not all of them will pay taxes.

In its present form, the bill

NEW YORK — (INS) — Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, seeking his third term as chief executive of New York City, today defeated John R. Davies, anti-New Deal candidate, for the Republican mayoralty nomination.

With only 62 of the city's 4,050 election districts yet to be heard from, LaGuardia, who is also the American Labor party's nominee, led the former GOP national secretary by 13,117 votes.

LaGuardia's total, excluding the missing districts, was 61,776 against Davies' total of 48,659. This represented one of the lightest votes in years. Less than 15 per cent of 700,000 eligible GOP voters cast ballots.

Reds Hurl Back Germans Along Central Sector

Claim 10,000 Killed In Counter-Thrust Towards Smolensk; Hitler Asserts Offensive 'Developing;' Renewed North Africa War Seen.

(By Associated Press)

Russia's armies today reported a smashing counter-offensive on the central front, 30 miles northeast of Smolensk, in which the Germans were hurled back westward with 10,000 killed and wounded after an eight-day battle.

The Soviet army newspaper Red Star said the fighting raged around Yartsevo, on the main highway between Smolensk and Moscow.

Other dispatches said the Russians, still pressing the attack, now were in a position to invest Smolensk.

Soviet reports also declared that Red army troops defending Leningrad had recaptured a strategically important crossroads village lying at one of the approaches to the northern industrial city, thus wrecking German plans for a new thrust against Leningrad itself.

Lying 230 miles west of Moscow, Smolensk was captured by the Germans more than six weeks ago in the first head-long drive toward the Russian capital.

Meanwhile, Adolf Hitler's high command asserted that the German offensive was "developing into an operation of the greatest extent."

Beyond this general statement, the high command gave no details, but Nazi military dispatches said German panzer columns slashing eastward across the steppes from the Dnieper river were threatening Russia's great Donets river industrial basin.

In the north, Nazi armies were said to have unleashed a new drive to choke off rail supplies from Moscow feeding the Red armies defending Leningrad.

Advices reaching London said Adolf Hitler's invasion forces, balked for the moment by Leningrad's stonewall defense, were striking toward the key town of Bologoe, midway along the 400-mile rail line between Moscow and the besieged old czarist capital.

If successful, these reports said, the Germans would seriously hamper the movement of supplies to the Red armies along the entire northern front and make their position extremely hazardous.

German military dispatches said Russian troops swooping down from the Waldai highlands, about 25 miles northwest of Bologoe, twice attempted to break through Nazi lines at Staraya Russa but finally were thrown back across the Lovat river.

On the southern (Ukraine) front, while German panzer units fought their way eastward from bridgeheads on the lower Dnieper river, the Russians reported the rout of Axis cavalry forces in the bloody month-old siege of Odessa, Soviet Black seaport.

Russian bombers supporting Odessa's defenses were credited with destroying 23 tanks, and 60 other German tanks were re-

Mechanized Forces Surround Iran Capital After Shah Abdicates.

(By Associated Press)

TEHERAN, Iran—Russian and British staff officers entered Teheran today as their mechanized forces surrounded the capital.

The Russian forces had come down from the northwest, the British up from the southwest, leaving their previous zones of occupation to take over the capital in the wake of yesterday's abdication of the ruler, Reza Shah Pahlavi, and his succession by his 21-year-old son.

Iranian troops stood guard in the streets of Teheran as a precaution against disorder as British and Russian forces approached the capital.

It was expected that the Russians, whose motorized advance guards were less than 30 miles north of the city yesterday, would be the first to enter.

(An authoritative British source in London said that occupation of Teheran would depend on the situation there and declared the converging British and Russian forces might remain outside the

Henderson, appearing in behalf of the administration's far-reaching price control bill, warned the committee that noticeable price advances took place during the 30-day house recess just concluded.

SHIPS BLOW UP

Three Swedish Destroyers Are Sunk By Mystery Blasts.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — (AP) — Three Swedish destroyers blew up mysteriously and sank today while at anchor in an east coast Swedish port and first reports said at least 31 men were killed.

Casualties were feared to be high but the full extent of the disaster was not known because of flaming oil hampering desperate rescue efforts.

It was established, however, that one officer, six non-commissioned officers and 24 marines were killed besides 11 others injured in the explosions.

Swedish authorities said they could not account for the blasts which, apparently, started on one ship and sank all three one after the other.

Official Figures Set City School Enrollment At 6,176

Official figures in the hands of the board of education disclosed today that total enrollment in Mansfield schools for the first semester is 6,176, or 14 more than for the same time last year.

Although the total enrollment is approximately the same, registration in the different schools has changed, with some showing a marked increase and others a decrease.

Bowman, Brinkerhoff and Carpenter showed an increase. Sizeable decreases were noticed in the Bushnell and Hedges schools, and very slight decreases in Newman, Prospect, and Western Avenue schools, while the enrollment in West Fifth and Woodland schools remained practically the same as last year.

An increase in first grade enrollment of 8.3 per cent indicated a larger group of first grade pupils rather than a general influx of population according to the board.

Enrollment by schools as of Sept. 16 was: Bowman, 883; Brinkerhoff, 238; Bushnell, 201; Carpenter, 248; Hedges, 417; Newman, 390; Prospect, 220; Western Avenue, 239; West Fifth, 198; Woodland, 135; Johnny Appleseed, 667; John Simpson, 902; Senior high, 1356; Special schools, 72, with a grand total of 6,176.

Included in the special schools are elementary vocational schools with an enrollment of 32; deaf school, 16; sunshine school, nine; and sight-saving school with an enrollment of 15.

Calls Defense Stamps Spikes Preventing Inflation Balloon

(Pictures on Page 10)

Speaking before a crowd of several hundred at a defense stamp rally held last night in Central park, John Catlett, Richland county representative in the general assembly, called defense stamps "long spike drivers in the balloon of inflation."

The rally was arranged by the Retail Merchants association and launched a campaign for the sale of defense stamps in more than 70 downtown retail stores.

"After the war, we will need funds, not the government," Catlett told his listeners, urging them to buy stamps. As a "painless method" of buying them he suggested that Mansfielders stand by a new slogan, "I'll take my change in defense stamps," when making a purchase.

Representative Catlett was introduced by R. M. Calene, president of the Retail Merchants association, and the talk followed a short parade led by the Mansfield Senior high school band, and including members of Mansfield's unit of the state guard.

They marched from Mulberry street, down Park avenue west and then circled Central park. The band then played selections at the park.

SMASH NAZIS IN 8-DAY BATTLE NEAR SMOLENSK

Russians Claim 10,000 Slain; Germans Fail To Break Leningrad Defense.

In North Africa, British and Axis troops continued a series of reconnaissance thrusts, possibly setting the stage for a renewal of last winter's fierce action.

London sources predicted that, with fierce desert heat subsiding, Britain's army of the Nile, now estimated at nearly 750,000 men under command of Gen. Sir Claude J. E. Auchinleck, soon would strike in a new offensive.

Britain's non-belligerent ally, Egypt, protested meanwhile to Berlin and Rome over the Axis bombing of Cairo, the largest Moslem city in the world, and Cairo inhabitants were asking when Britain would retaliate, as threatened, by bombing Rome.

The German high command admitted that Nazi planes raided the Heliopolis airport near Cairo, causing big fires and explosions. Thirty-nine persons were reported killed and 93 wounded in the attack.

In the Russian campaign, the Germans made no new claims of striking closer to Leningrad, but a German war reporter said he stood on a hill only 18 miles from the heart of the old czarist capital, picking out apartment houses with his field glasses, and speculated whether the Russians "have any inkling we are so close."

The Russians claimed two victories in the general northern area.

The Lake Ladoga island of Tahmasaari was recaptured from the Finns, the Soviet information bureau said, and a Russian garrison frustrated Sunday another attempt—the second in two days—to seize the Estonian island of Oesel in the Baltic sea.

About 800 Finns were killed during the Lake Ladoga fighting, Moscow said, and others were captured.

Of the Oesel island engagements it was declared:

"The bulk of the enemy marine and air landing parties was annihilated and the remnants were thrown into the sea."

Russians said 48 German tanks and armored cars, 27 guns and 13 mine-throwers had been destroyed by a Red army tank brigade in a single engagement of the battle of Leningrad.

British and German bombers exchanged air blows overnight.

RAF planes raided the Rhineland and a Berlin announcement said a number of civilians were killed or wounded and residences were damaged slightly at various points.

Authoritative London sources acknowledged that a small number of Luftwaffe planes crossed the English coast, but said that neither casualties nor damage resulted.

Iranian troops guarded the streets of Teheran as a precaution against disorder while British and Russian forces approached from opposite directions with the intention of occupying the capital today.

Germans Broaden Reprisal Executions

PARIS, German Occupied France—(AP)—German authorities anounced today that shooting of hostages in reprisal for attacks on Germans would be extended to include not only Communists but "all classes of the Paris population."

The announcement came as a German non-commissioned officer died of bullet wounds inflicted Monday by an unidentified assailant in defiance of the executions for previous attacks on members of the army of occupation.

The new policy, anounced in all Paris papers and posted on walls throughout the city, read:

"If attacks continue, the occupation authorities will shoot increasing numbers of hostages, and these hostages no longer will be taken exclusively from among Communists, but from all classes of the Paris population."

The soldier was the second reported slain in Paris within a few weeks.

Both French and German authorities pressed a citywide search for the person responsible for the latest attack and for the kidnapers of Manuel Herteaux, 20-year-old son of Lieut. Col. Alfred Herteaux, vice president of the Veteran's legion which now is the official party of the Vichy regime.

Nazis Admit Cairo Airdrome Bombed

BERLIN — (INS) — Confirming that German planes raided the Cairo area yesterday, the German high command today said that the attack was concentrated on Heliopolis airdrome, near the Egyptian capital.

"Large fires and explosions were started in the hangars and ammunition dumps," the statement said.

Egypt Protests Cairo Bombings

CAIRO, Egypt — (AP) — The Egyptian government has protested to Berlin and Rome, sources here said today, over the Axis bombing of the Cairo area.

Cairo, headquarters of the British Middle East command as well as the capital of Egypt, which is a non-belligerent ally of Britain, was bombed for the first time early Tuesday by Axis warplanes and 39 persons were said to have been killed and 93 wounded.

(The raiders defied a British threat April 18 of retaliation against Rome in the event that either Cairo or Athens were bombed.

(In all the fighting incident to the Axis conquest of Greece, Athens itself was not attacked by air raiders.)

(The German high command announced today that German combat planes had raided the airport of Heliopolis near Cairo Monday night, causing big fires and explosions in hangars and munitions dumps.)

Smoke Writes Doom of Nazis, Norway Coal

The columns of smoke rising in this air view of the Spitzbergen islands is proof of the success of an expedition of a British, Canadian and Free Norwegian force which raided the islands and destroyed the rich coal resources there, cutting off an important fuel supply of the German war machine. Burning coal dumps cause the smoke.

Iranian capital if an orderly regime seemed likely.

(No program other than one which would give assurance of less autocracy and wider benefits to the Iranian people would satisfy the Allies, however, this source asserted.)

Though officials expected no trouble, there were signs of anxiety among the native population and many persons fled to the country in automobiles and carriages loaded with baggage.

Reza Shah Pahlavi, who abdicated yesterday after the British and Russians had accused him of dilatory tactics in complying with the terms of the recently completed peace agreement, was reported en route to Isfahan, on the road along which the British forces advanced from the south.

His 21-year-old son, Shahpur Mohammed Reza Pahlavi, who succeeded him, and his cabinet, which continued in office, remained in Teheran.

The British-Russian decision to occupy Teheran brought to a climax an invasion Aug. 25 after Iran had failed to meet the Allies' demands for expulsion of German agents and technicians from the country.

After a brief show of resistance, the Iranian government ordered its troops to cease fire on Aug. 28 and subsequently negotiated a peace agreement with the Allies.

MILK DUMPING THREAT ISSUED

Farmers Seek Price Boost In Cincinnati Area.

CINCINNATI — (INS) — Farmers in the Cincinnati milk shed today threatened to dump their milk and feed it to stock rather than ship it to the city if distributors refuse to pay them $3.50 per hundredweight.

Frank Leever, a spokesman, said the $3.50 would mean an increase of 85 cents for milk of 3.5 per cent butterfat content.

Leever also said that highways in the Ohio, Kentucky and Indiana areas that constitute the Cincinnati milk shed would be patrolled and trucks stopped if it is necessary to call a milk strike.

Only enough milk to supply hospitals, childrens' homes and similar places would be allowed to go through, he said.

Local union officials made no announcement of the workers' grievances, but company spokesmen said wages were a part of the issues. The SWOC holds a contract with the company, a subsidiary of the United States Steel corporation.

training supervisor to adapt labor for defense work. He felt confident that Mansfield could get a large share of the defense contracts if it would enter the plan whole-heartedly.

"Manufacturers must realize that the government cannot ask for articles according to the manufacturer's specifications. Industry must adapt itself to produce what the nation needs. They must approach defense work as if it were a new industry."

Lind emphasized that the conference was held solely for discussion purposes but that countless contacts between the larger contract-holders and manufacturers who could assume special tasks were being made.

Army and Navy representatives, although arranging no contracts, directed at least 50 manufacturers to the proper governmental departments to make their bids for federal orders.

The Mansfield conference was the second of seven to be held in the state. Following the Toledo meeting today, the caravan will move into Zanesville, Canton, Youngstown and Cleveland.

The ballroom of the hotel looked more like a machine shop than a room for dining and dancing. Samples of machine toolings of all sizes and shapes littered tables spaced about the room.

Studying samples and blueprints were the scores of industrialists from Richland and nearby counties.

OPM officials and representatives of some of the nation's largest industries explained to the local manufacturers their requirements and asked questions on local production potentialities.

Under the red, white and blue sign reading "Time Is Growing Short" the manufacturers discussed needed equipment for America's bombers, tanks, soldiers and other national defense items.

Mansfield was well represented at the conference by the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing company, which already holds a $3,000,000 contract for army binoculars; the Mansfield Tire and Rubber company, the Tappan Stove company, the Ohio Brass, Barnes Manufacturing company and a number of others.

Firms from Shelby, Crestline, Galion, Mount Vernon, Loudonville, Plymouth Mt. Gilead also examined the blueprints of the national manufacturers and told which parts they could turn out efficiently.

Each industrial representative, when registering, received an application blank. After he had visited all the exhibits and talked with the representatives of the companies, he filled out the blank, telling just what articles his firm was interested in producing for national defense.

These blanks will be examined by the OPM authorities and the manufacturers and from the reports, it is hoped that the prime industries seeking reservoirs into which to throw sublet contracts may find their needs.

At least four aviation concerns had displays at the caravan, seeking small fittings for airplane manufacture. Both Westinghouse and General Electric were represented. Many other specialty electric firms holding large contracts were looking for plants to turn out special parts for their items.

Greatest need for the manufacturers seemed to be specially-tooled plants which could turn out in mass production small parts for larger articles. None of the companies were seeking plants which could produce complete units.

Representatives of both the Army and Navy ordnance departments were on hand to acquaint manufacturers from this area with the industrial needs of their services.

Lieut. Commander William Pitt Kellogg said that the Navy had set aside the "harder hit" areas where material restrictions would cripple local industries and will concentrate on giving them contracts.

Lieut. Kellogg said that only companies in the defined areas would be allowed to bid and that larger firms would be forced to sublet parts of their contracts to the smaller ones.

Both the Army and Navy have already placed some contracts with Mansfield and vicinity industries. The Westinghouse binocular contract is for Army use. Other manufacturers are turning out bomb releases and stamped metal parts for both the Navy and Army. The Shelby Auto-Call company, which holds a large contract to supply signalling devices for the Navy, had a representative at yesterday's meeting.

First Lieut. J. R. Van Rensselaer, of the Army's Ordnance department, said that the biggest difficulty in handling manufacturers seeking contracts was in explaining to them that there are several different departments to be considered.

"If they can't understand that the ordnance department is concerned with altogether different articles than the quartermaster or medical corps," said the lieutenant, "how can they possibly hope to sell their products?"

NEAR ACCORD ON GIANT TAX BILL

Legislative Leaders Expect To Send Measure To White House Today.

would raise an estimated $1,144,600,000 from individual incomes through a system of graduated surtaxes starting at six per cent on the first dollar of taxable income and rising to 77 per cent on incomes over $5,000,000. It would lower personal exemptions from $2,000 to $1,500 for married persons and from $800 to 750 for single persons and thereby raise about $303,000,000 in new revenue.

Only about $47,000,000 of this increase would come from new taxpayers, however, for the lion's share would be paid by persons already taxed.

The normal income tax rate of four per cent was left unchanged and the bill would permit the use of an optional, simplified return by persons with gross incomes of $3,000 or less which would eliminate most of the paper work involved in computing taxes.

In the case of corporations, the bill would levy a 6 per cent surtax on the first $25,000 of corporation incomes and seven per cent on any excess. It would not change the normal corporate tax of 24 per cent but would boost the excess profits rate by 10 percentage points so that instead of ranging from 25 to 50 per cent, they would run from 35 to 60.

A wide variety of new or increased excise taxes and miscellaneous levies, effective Oct. 1, also would be imposed by the bill and the treasury estimated they would produce a total of about $1,026,700,000 additional revenue.

MONTPELIER, Vt.—(INS)—Congress hasn't acted and neither have 47 of the Sovereign states, but Vermont today sair that as far as the Green Mountain state is concerned the United States right now is at war with the Axis powers.

The state legislature adopted a resolution declaring that the United States has been "in armed conflict" with Germany and Italy since last Thursday night. That was the occasion of the president's speech revealing orders to the American Navy to clear defense waters of enemy craft.

Approval of the resolution makes operative a law providing a $10-a-month bonus to each Vermont man in the armed services of the nation. The bonus can be collected when the service men are discharged, up to a maximum of 12 months.

A $500,000 bond issue was authorized to meet the bonus payments.

Councilmen Told Parallel System Adds To Troubles; Mayor Offers Plan.

BUCYRUS—The Bucyrus parking problem, which has become more acute with the adoption this week of parallel parking, was one of the chief topics up for discussion at the regular meeting of city council Tuesday night.

In a recommendation made by Mayor William F. Whiteamire, request was made that the city lease the parking lot on Walnut street across from the courthouse for a city parking ground. Mayor Whiteamire also recommended that the city traffic commission consider the installation of parking meters as a solution to the problem. The parking lot will accommodate 100 cars, he stated.

Safety Director Carl Jacobs reported that the city lot on West Mary street had been placed in good condition for parking and will be available for 70 cars.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 17, 1941

Not only is Hitler behind his own schedule in Russia, but he is lagging behind Napoleon's progress to Moscow.

The new automobiles are beauties—but hasn't that been the impression year after year when the new models came out?

It now develops that Senator Nye never saw any of those films which he says "incited the nation to war"—which is remindful of the spinsters who advise mothers about rearing children.

Start Toward Higher Taxes

HOUSE approval of senate changes in the original measure assures the most gigantic tax bill in American history and gives an idea of the incredible cost of modern war.

This bill is designed to raise $3,553,400,000 annually, an increase of around $350,000,000 over the bill originally approved by the house—and part of this is to come from lower income levels which have never before been subjected to direct federal taxation.

Most important change in the senate bill over the house bill was the provision dropping income tax exemptions to $1,500 for married persons (previous exemption was $2,000), and to $750 for single persons (previous exemption was $800). This change alone, according to treasury experts, is expected to yield an additional $303,000,000 annually. It is a change which has long been advocated by economists, who believe that the burden of government cost is now so great that the middle and higher income brackets can no longer pay it.

This change was suggested by President Roosevelt when the tax bill was still before the house but the house revenue committee refused to adopt it.

Heavy as this tax bill is, few believe that it will prove adequate. Soon arms spending alone will reach $3,000,000,000 a month—nearly as much as the new bill is designed to raise in an entire year. Total arms and aid-to-democracies spending will probably reach or pass $50,000,000,000, depending on how long the war lasts.

How Minorities Gain Control

"EXPECT LIGHT VOTE" was a recent headline over a story about a primary election in a big city. It indicates a condition common not only in connection with primaries and other public elections, but in the case of civic clubs and other organizations of importance.

Because so many of those eligible fail to take part in preparing, determining and carrying out the policies and programs of the groups, these things are left to the active minority. Misrepresentation and mismanagement may result. Or, if the lazy majority is more fortunate than it deserves and affairs are well handled, the individuals of which it is composed miss entirely the useful experience and educational benefits of responsibility properly assumed.

Americans get excited about certain elections at certain times. The popular vote in national elections has been rising steadily. In most other elections, on the other hand, more than half the eligible voters refrain from voting. Public affairs are then controlled by a handful of citizens, often selfishly. The same thing can be true in labor unions, clubs, or corporations, where a few may become a majority only because of the negligence of the real majority.

Food Scarcity In Europe

THE MOST engrossing interest in continental Europe this winter may be not the war, but the meals. Indications are that, of the Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse, the one most evident will be Famine.

In France, which is not in the war but suffers from the blight just the same, it is said that the familiar greeting at lunch time has changed. Instead of a friend wishing you "Good appetite" he wishes you "Little appetite." It is best not to be hungry. And yet there is a whole nation that is doomed to be hungry at every meal, for a period that no one can measure, and never to have that hunger satisfied. France is considered comparatively well off, too. Around her are nations far hungrier.

And what of the Russians in the extensive areas now occupied by the Nazis? Nearly everything has been destroyed in that region. Asked how the millions in occupied western Russia are to be fed this winter, Nazi officials who have confiscated all the food they could find shrug their shoulders. It is none of their affair!

Big Demand for Small Coins

CONSERVATION of metal, for defense, may be eventually hit upon as a means of ridding the country of slot machines, which are credited with tying up a considerable percentage of the nation's coinage.

Demand for coins is keeping United States mints working at capacity and the tons of coins of various denominations stored away in untapped jackpots can only be roughly estimated.

Various reasons are advanced for this increase in the use of small coins, sales tax, parking meters, automatic telephones and merchandise vending machines being included in the list with jackpot and marble slot machines—to say nothing of the penny devices used to educate school children in the art of gambling.

In many instances accumulated coins are held out of circulation for quite awhile, making total requirements much greater than they would otherwise be.

Vegetables Become Versatile

THE latest vegetable wonder is reported from Hattiesburg, Miss. A veracious citizen, named R. N. Delancy, has potato plants that produce potatoes underground and tomatoes above.

They are not all so versatile, as four plants out of five are normal. But there's no telling what may be done by careful selection and encouragement. In a few years Mr. Delancy may have potatoes that will produce a whole New England boiled dinner on every stalk.

A private at Fort Slocum insists that his name is Solomon Solomon Solomon—and it may be wondered if his wisdom is commensurate.

Those who call the annual baseball classic "the world's serious" are more accurate than they may realize.

Recounting Ohio's Many Charms

(Editor's Note: Too little is heard of the beauties, the culture, the history 'of pastoral' and rural Ohio, says Leavitt F. Morris, who wrote the following article taken from the Christian Science Monitor.)

* * *

THIS is not story of industrial Ohio busy with Uncle Sam's defense orders — though it well could be.

It is a story about pastoral and scenic Ohio—a story about an Ohio rich in history, culture, and recreational opportunities, a story that Ohio wants every traveler and vacationist to know.

Ohio, for the most part, has been modest—too modest about its scenic virtues. The strains of that famous song, "Beautiful Ohio," it is true, have been heard the nation over, but Ohio has said too little about its wide rivers that move languidly toward the sea. Neither has it said enough about its cooling Lake Erie, its aged, spreading elms that shelter snug homes; nor its kindly people, genuine, hospitable and courteous people, that live in those homes.

* * *

WHILE neighboring states have been lustily singing their own vacation attractions, Ohio has been content to let the traveler discover for himself the beauties of the Buckeye State. Those, however, who have taken the time to see Ohio's scenic and historical treasures have found the state a delightful and profitable place to visit.

For instance, consider the vast regions of Hocking Forest Parks near Logan. Here, indeed, is a playground brimming over with scenic grandeur. Through the centuries nature has been at work chiseling great caves out of solid rock; digging deep ravines for plunging waterfalls to follow; and planting tons of plant life until today the area has become a huge rock garden surrounded with giant trees, ferns, and variegated flowers.

History Close at Hand.

History, too, always is close at hand in Ohio. Of particular interest is the restoration of Schoenbrunn Village—Ohio's first town—in the vicinity of New Philadelphia. It was in 1772 that David Zeisberger and a small company of Christian Indians laid out the town of Schoenbrunn. Here was formed the first temperance society and the first peace society west of the Allegheny Mountains, for they would not allow liquor in their town, nor would they go to war.

"We will not admit rum or any other intoxicating liquors into our towns," their code read. "If strangers or traders bring intoxicating liquor, the helpers shall take it from them and not restore it until the owners are ready to leave the place."

In 1777, the village was burned by its builders to prevent it from falling into th handes of hostile Indians. For 146 years crops were planted and harvested on the village site without its significance being known. However, through historical records and maps of the Moravian Archives in Bethlehem, Pa., it was possible to relocate the village.

The restoration of this village today is nearly complete.

MORE history abounds in Marietta, called the most historic city west of the 13 colonies. And then take the story which the many Indian mounds tell or serpent mound or—

Well, Ohio's advice today is: Come and see for yourself.

Away From It All

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

I'VE HEARD," says she, "that you live on a lovely ranch most of the time. How happy you must be, to get away from it all!"

Live on a ranch? Guess again, lady. I work on a ranch . . . when I have the luck to be there. And I mean W-O-R-K. I don't know what your dream-picture of ranching may be but I assure you the Grim Reality is anything but a cream puff. Glamorous Hollywood films to the contrary, "life on the range" is one long succession of wood ticks, gophers, poison ivy, frost-bitten fruit, love-smitten cowboys, pouty cattle, cantankerous climates . . . and 9,467 varieties of federal regulations and taxes, all of which you forget to meet on the proper date.

Being at best a low-grade moron, I like the combination. And lope for the hills as often as the job permits. But I've yet to meet the Normal Female who could stand God's Great Open Spaces for more'n 36 hours without discovering that she had an Ulcerated Tooth . . . an Unfaithful Husband . . . a Bridge Party date she'd forgotten . . . or a new Hair-do that needed fixing. Which naturally necessitated her immediate return to the Big City.

But as for me being "happy to get away from it all"—? Smile when you say that, lady! That isn't just an insult; it's mayhem. I not only do N-O-T want to "get away from it all" but I regard those who do as cowardly, lazy and completely dumb Quitters . . . and Public Nuisances.

People were designed to be gregarious animals. And anyone who tries to duck the original blueprint is wishing a lot of grief on himself and his unfortunate associates.

There are several reasons for this. First off, isolation doesn't agree with the Human Constitution. Take me, f'instance. I simply dote on the Dear Lil' Flowers. But you should see me after a few weeks of intimate and exclusive association with a flock of phlox. I'm about as cooperative as a starved coyote! Moreover, I feel like one.

For while I've been communing with the robins and the roses, what's been happening to the world I've left behind? Plenty's been happening. Loneliness, bewilderment, discouragement, despair, fear and frantic frustration have been happening. All of which I could have helped, to some small degree. But instead, I've been ducking 'em like a cheap piker.

"Wanna get away from it all?"

NO, MA'AM, I DON'T!

I want to get into the thick of it all. I want to be part of everything we call human life . . . whether it's wise and inspiring or silly and dumb. In short, I want to be as warm and eager, excited and curious, as I was at 18. Or get the Swift Kick I deserve if I'm not.

Big Ukraine Wheat Crop Useless; Actual Gasoline Shortage Looms

—By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—What has happened to the Russian wheat crop in the Ukraine? This vast granary ranking along with the middle west and the Argentine in importance was the big reason Hitler chose middle June to time his attack on Russia. However, here is what happened to the wheat crop according to diplomatic dispatches from U. S. officials abroad.

In the eastern Ukraine the Russians were able to harvest part of the grain ahead of the German advance. This was removed, the rest was burned. The Nazis got nothing.

In the western Ukraine where the harvest was a month late, the Germans found the grain standing but again this will be no help to them for this grain is on big collective farms and the managers have moved out leaving only unskilled Russian workers. More important, nearly all machinery has been removed or destroyed. Thus the Germans are confronted with the problem of harvesting with primitive tools and unskilled workers.

Taking the situation as a whole, the Nazi conquest of the great Russian granary brings no advantage to the food situation in Germany. And looking ahead, Germany is also confronted with probable waste of this productive capacity next year: For the big problem will be to plant this vast area with over four-fifths of the tractors removed or destroyed and few horses or cattle left.

Note: On the other side of the picture, diplomatic dispatches report that Hitler has trained 12,000 German farm managers to move into the Ukraine immediately to take over Stalin's collective farms. Hitler, incidentally, apparently believes in Stalin's farm system, for his managers have been trained in collectivization.

Blame It on Harold.

NO MAN in history of the New Deal has taken more battering and more abuse from the public recently than oil administrator Harold Ickes.

His curtailment of oil has been investigated by a senate committee which reported no real oil and gas shortage. His pleadings for gasoline economy have been resented by motorists. His deputy administrator, Ralph Davies, of Standard Oil of California, has been severely criticized by the railroads which claim they have ample tank cars to move oil but that the big companies do not want to pay the rail rates.

However, if there is one man who is extremely grateful to Harold Ickes for taking the rap in the oil and gas hullabaloo, he is the gentleman in the White House.

For there is one thing F. D. R. knows that most people don't know, namely, that another big request has just come from the British for more oil tankers. He also knows that whenever there is a submarine raid, the Nazis pick out the oil tankers and sink them first out of every convoy. He also knows that extended U. S. naval operations in the North Atlantic which are going to be greater than ever before—again something which F. D. R. alone has reasons to know—will require much more oil than the navy has on reserve at present.

In other words, the oil shortage may not be here at the moment but it is just around the corner, and Ickes has been standing the gaff for the president and the British.

British Embassy.

BRITISH Toryism has not breathed its last. Canadian girls working in the British embassy in Washington, testify that, although picked with scrupulous care, and brought from Canada for exacting war work, they are among the lowest paid workers in the Capital.

The going wage for these girls is $110 and $120 a month, which is far less than British girls are getting for the same type of work in the same place. But many of the British girls come from the titled families of England, and enjoy not only a higher base pay (on which, however, they have to pay heavy income taxes) but they are allowed $7 a day "overseas allowance." This in itself is nearly twice the salary of the Canadian girls.

Dissatisfaction of the Canadian workers has become a matter of concern for embassy officials, who have still other reasons to fear their reaction. Many of the Canadians are French Catholics, and the bombing of French cities, plus the possibility of bombing Rome, has embassy officials worried.

Vacuum Cleaners.

IN LEON HENDERSON'S OPACS office, in the newly-finished temporary building on the Mall, a meeting was held to hear grievances from manufacturers of consumers goods. The head of a well-known vacuum cleaner company was there.

"Do you realize," he pleaded, "what's going to happen to American homes if we don't get steel for the manufacture of vacuum cleaners?"

And he got down on his knees on the floor and went "poof." A cloud of dust billowed into the air. Defense officials laughed, and he won his point.

* * *

Horror Chamber.

UNDER the office of the secretary of the treasury, and connected to it by a private elevator, is one of the most amazing "Chambers of Horror" to be found in any government department.

Although a bright fire burns in the hearth and the sun streams in through a window overlooking the White House, the walls of the room are covered with critical, scathing cartoons and caricatures of Henry Morgenthau showing him and the president garbed as high priests sacrificing the American taxpayer on the altar of government expenditures; or garbed as surgeons, "needling" the American dollar; plus others even more pointed and unflattering.

The room is used as a private dining room for Mr. Morgenthau and intimates, and why the secretary of the treasury, who is rather a sensitive person, maintains it is difficult to determine, unless to prove that he "can take it."

Center piece of the room is an oval table, formerly in the office of Undersecretary Gerald B. Winston, at which the debt-funding agreements were negotiated after the World War. The table is described by one treasury office as "the table where more money was talked about and less paid over, than any other piece of furniture in the world."

Around the rim of the table are a series of engraved silver plates, commemorating the various negotiations, the amounts and personnel involved. Poland, Austria, Yugoslavia, Greece, Turkey, Latvia Italy, Belgium, France, Great Britain, and Finland, the only one to keep its promise, are all represented.

Curiously, one plate is bare—reserved who can say for what nation, and negotiation yet to be consummated for what amount and under what circumstances.

Tucker Takes Look Around

—By GEORGE TUCKER

ABOARD AIRLINER BUCCANEER (MIAMI BOUND)—Twenty-four hours in New Orleans wasn't nearly enough.... It wasn't a drop in the bucket, but no can help....At that, it wasn't 24 hours....We were four hours late getting into N. O., having been grounded five hours by fog in Richmond....

So, there was much ground to cover in a few brief hours.... Before I left, I did get around to see Estelle and LeRoy, my favorite dancers, at the Blue Room at the Roosevelt....It was like old times, for I have seen them many times in New York, and in my files are letters from them from South America, Italy, Germany, London, France....I saw Rosita Rios, too, and heard her sing, though I did not get to talk with her....Del Casino dropped by our table for a chat....These are people whose names are well known along the dim-lit precincts of Broadway's nightlife.

* * *

ABOUT four o'clock in the morning I observed the tradition that any self-respecting Mohammedan would observe on a visit to Mecca....I went down to the old French market, now newly-painted and air-conditioned, and had coffee and sour doughnuts....Then I ambled along Decatur street, parallel with the river, and watched the old French market come alive....Crates of chickens cackling, but sleepily. ...Negroes sorting huge fleets of watermelons on the curbs.... Berries and fruits....Green vegetables and fish....

I sauntered on back to the corner of Jackson Square, where old Andrew sits astride his giant iron horse....Across the square was the Cabildo, home (some say) of the Spanish inquisition, home of the law, of rule and misrule, now a rendezvous of historic archives and treasures that testify to Louisiana's enchanting history....Through the high iron fence I could see the Cathedral of St. Louis . . . At the moment a great Eastern Airlines sleeper, with her running lights running strong, ploughed overhead, the hum of her motors wafted earthward by the soft gulf breeze.

* * *

I GOT into a cab then and returned to the St. Charles and to breakfast....There was packing to do, souvenirs to mail, and then the trip to the airport, perched beautifully and commandingly on the lips of Lake Pontchartrain.

So here we are now, seven thousand feet above sea level, with New Orleans receding and Miami coming up....I can still see the broad, yellow Mississippi — it's that clear today.

In Miami, I will go sailfishing in the Gulf Stream and try to outdo Ernest Hemingway, who holds the world's record....Unless I miss a guess, our stewardess isn't long for this line....She will surely wind up in the movies. She is Miss Ann Taylor, of Jacksonville, named this year Miss Florida Aviation....It's her first week on the job.

Everyday Poem

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

On Wings of Thought.

My thoughts can come and go at will,
Can take me up the highest hill,
Can fly me far across old seas
With competence and merry ease.

But flesh with weary slowness goes;
It must be fed, must have repose,
Must be conveyed by clumsy craft
That man has made, a boat or raft,

Or plane that seeks but lower sky,
And never to the stars can fly.
This body holds me back, but thought
Gives me all that my dreams have sought.

A Farmer's Diary

Chiselers of Birdland

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

ALL summer I have noticed a dozen dirty-looking, slate-colored birds with short beaks about the cow pasture. They follow our neighbor's grazing herd and several of them huddle in the blue grass where our cow is tethered.

Great hordes of flies collect upon her shoulder points and along her sharp bony spine. When she impatiently swings her head to drive them off, several of the birds I have mentioned fly up and grab at the flies. Others move up close to the twisting tongue of the cow as she grazes, and some to watch her brown, moist muzzle.

Some remain near her restless feet, and I thoughtlessly crushed the apple in my pocket when I saw her step upon a careless unsuspecting young bird and stamp his life out. Death came so promptly that there was not a movement after the leisurely hind foot had gone forward.

From where I stood, I could see teeming insects rise whenever the grass was disturbed by foot or nose and the flock of waiting birds pounced on them and devoured them ravenously. It semed the cow and the birds cooperated for their mutual benefit.

Today I saw along the slope, a curious bird's nest. It was cunningly concealed in the crotch of a hazel bush, so that I brushed my shoulder against the rough exterior before I noticed it. It looked like a yellow warbler's nest but was higher than normal. I bent down the limber branch and looked inside. Surprisingly, the little bowl was shallow.

I tore it from its moorings and shook it slightly. Something moved. So I tore away the outer surface, bit by bit, until I found a large, brown speckled egg. The warbler had partitioned off this egg with a false bottom to her nest, and had laid her own eggs and hatched her young in the compartment above it. Her good judgment made me smile.

The common cowbird that follows the herd in the pasture never builds a nest of its own, but slyly waits until some other bird leaves its nest then lays an egg there and departs. As many as 90 different songbirds are known to be imposed upon in this way by the miserable cheats. The trouble is, when all the eggs hatch, the cowbird's big ungainly brat takes all the food and crowds the legitimate offspring out of their own home. So these roving hitchhiking slackers perpetuate themselves and only the clever warbler of all the songbird crowd knows when she is imposed upon and does something about it.

Yet, every year, when I see how well the gluttonous cowbirds guard the herd and devour ripening weed seeds in the meadow pastures, I must give the devil his due. In Nature's scheme, the unholy cowbird tribe is useful, too.

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

'I'LL DO that' I promised my father but as he turned to the door I put one more question—timorously for he does not brook delay

Ronald is to meet Richard at the station when his train comes in I said I thought perhaps—those men?

My father flashed a comprehending smile at me and coming back from the door put his arm around me

'You do not need to be so afraid of me darling he said I really am not the big bad wolf,' although I admit I do sound like him sometimes But you have just made a most helpful suggestion Tell Ronald to keep his eyes open for the two men with the tiny wire clips in their buttonholes and point them out to Richard and also ask Richard to lose no time in telephoning you I will let you know where Richard can get in touch with me if I am not back here which I probably will be And now I must go Snatch what sleep you can until I come back or telephone you Goodbye again

He nodded to Mary and went swiftly out of the door As it closed behind him she gave an exaggerated sigh

Mystery Plans.

'I love Grandpa Spencer she said 'but he can be the most tantalizing man alive I'm willing to bet the last doughnut Mrs Tiger made that he got plenty out of what Nancy Carew and I told him—especially if he turned her inside out the way he did me And he seemed to be pleased with what we found out about the code But will he give up the least detail of what he's planning—or thinking—about Marion — or Redfield? Any wild horse would turn tail and run if he were given the assignment of dragging any information out of Grandpa Spencer

'I agree with you Mary" I said laughing at her mutinous face and extravagant phrasing But I haven't time to speculate on his meaning I must telephone Ronald at once Suppose you lie down again and try to get some sleep'

'A very good sugggestion" she said When will you follow suit?'

'As soon as I've telephoned Ronald" I told her 'I shan't have very long at the most until your uncle Dicky's train reaches Dalemont Then he will telephone me and of course my father may call before then But I'll be able to stretch out for a few minutes anyway And there's no reason why you shouldn't get a good nap Then you'll be fresh for whatever's needed in the morning'

'I'll just do that little thing" she said 'But don't forget to call me instantly if you need me"

"I'll 'just do that little thing' too" I said smiling at her

"See that you do" she retorted and went through the bedroom door, closing it after her as I took down the telephone receiver

A sleepy-voiced garage attendant answered the call when the long distance operator had connected me and I made my question clear and incisive

Is Mr Ronald Brixton there?' I asked spacing my words

A Call For Ronald

He brightened up immediately if his voice was any reflection of his mental reaction

Oh yes!' he said 'I'll call him He's walking up and down outside'

So he had not obeyed my injunction to sleep' Well' I reflected philosophically, I could hardly have expected such obedience from the overwrought boy and then his voice eager almost frenzied came to my ears

'Yes Aunt Madge? he almost shouted What have you found out?'

'Are you in a booth? I asked with reproof in my voice

No he responded then caught his breath 'I see he amended

"The Authority on Authorities"

REVERSING A FACTOR

ORDINARILY an opening lead of the suit bid by the ultimate dummy is the worst lead in the hand because it enables the declarer to establish that suit and use it to discard losers in other suits from his own holding But if indications are that the suit is inordinately long and strong a lead of it may constitute the best defense Thereby you may break communication between the declarer and the dummy using up his only cards in the suit before your own sides trumps have been taken out

Bidding about like that occurred at two duplicate tables In one case West led his spade A then the club 10 which South ruffed The heart K knocked out the A and now anything that East returned meant a lay-down for South who could drop the trumps and then score his solid winners

West at the other table led the Diamond 9 to the 10 The declarer knocked out the Heart A with the K and East returned the diamond 5 to the A With no way to re-enter dummy after the last hostile trumps were taken out the declarer had to lose two spade tricks so was down one

Don't Nag Correcting Your Child

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

A childless young wife who formerly was teacher writes "Just lately we have been unhappy together and it probably is my fault We have wanted children but cannot have them which adds to the trouble

The main difficulty seems to be in my expecting too much of my husband He does not try to speak correctly and so makes many mistakes These irritate me when we are at parties and while I realize it I sometimes forget and correct him in my school-teacher fashion Then there is always a scene and he tells me in an unkind way of all my own faults

This wife has diagnosed her own problem and by implication has suggested the emedy I'm sorry for her and sorry for her husband a little more for him perhaps But I admire her for seeing clearly her own difficulties

Wife Over-Sensitive

Just because she was a school teacher she is over sensitive to her husband's grammar If she had children she probably would worry about their grammar too

Incidentally I wish teachers would not so often interrupt their pupils over slips in grammar and I wish parents would correct such errors of speech only at quiet moments when the child would welcome the correction

Now back to this wife to whom I suggested the adoption of an infant It will take a lot of self-discipline for her to cease nagging her hubby He probably feels inferior to her in respect to school education and in unconscious self-defense resents her corrections Perhaps he even grows more slovenly in speech just because she nags at him

Not All-Important

I wish this wife and many parents and teachers might realize that interesting speech does not depend upon grammar and that worry over grammar too often makes speech unattractive Some illiterates indeed speak very picturesquely and there are some English experts who might profit from listening to them attentively

There are so many items in husband-wife and parent child relationships more important than grammar that it is a pity any adult should fret or make of himself or herself a nuisance in the home over such small matters

Iceland Patrol: No. 2

What U. S. Navy Has Done to Geography!

By MORGAN M. BEATTY
(AP Feature Service Writer)

ABOARD U S NAVY PATROL BOMBER OVER THE ATLANTIC — Hot cakes for early breakfast in New England and a snack of Danish pastry for late supper in Iceland! That would be possible in these huge flying boats. They can cross whole time zones while you're taking your Sunday afternoon nap but our flights no stunt. We aren't proving anything about hot cakes and pastry. We're out on a serious mission in an area that's notorious for the worst weather in the world.

It our job to watch over American merchant ships and navy vessels between the United States and Iceland. And we're doing it precisely and accurately. At the moment we have reached our farthest point east. Several hours ago we took off from our floating air base 'somewhere off the coast of the American side of the North Atlantic.' We're about opposite the southern tip of Greenland and it's time to back track.

* * *

"Station men in the blisters; keep a sharp lookout."

It's the voice of the flight commander through the plane's phone system. Gunners move along the runway aft, take observation posts in the big windowed area near the tail.

* * *

The navigation officer forward awaits orders. He's got a lot of fast work to do. The commander speaks.

'Chart the course X X miles on either side of our outbound course . . . Give us a turn at specified intervals . . .'

The navigator bends over his big table. In a minute or two he passes a tiny strip of paper to the commander. It says: 'Two three-zero-m.' That's our magnetic compass course for the moment. The commander relays the course to our accompanying plane and we begin a slow turn.

'I'm crossing over . . . You cross under . . .' says my left earphone. Wilco comes back the answer signifying compliance.

The navigator sends an officer to drop a smoke bomb and get the wind-drift. Then he picks up the artificial horizon and squints at the sun, calculates rapidly. This checks the drift of the plane and our position in the wastes of the North Atlantic.

* *

Our course develops in lines on the blank chart like a ladder. We cross and recross our outbound course, repeat the process endlessly. This is the way the Navy air arm makes tracks in a trackless ocean. No guesswork, no fuss, no confusion. Just headwork and precise co-ordination.

They have just sighted a ship

* *

Our aircraft and every man aboard is a team. The plane with us is another team and our floating airbase is still another, holding us all together with the magic waves of radio. The commander back on that base is responsible to the chief of operations in Washington, Admiral Harold Stark, who reports to the Secretary of the Navy, Frank Knox. Mr. Knox is under the president.

The navigator calls me to a chart, points to a tiny spot on the American shore.

'We're heading for that light house.'

We receive a message from the base.

'Return not later than sixteen-thirty plus X time . . .' That means we must get in by 1:30 p.m. time zone X west of Greenwich plus one half hour.

* *

* * *

We had scanned more than 6,000 square miles of the North Atlantic in our ten-hour flight. As the crow flies we'd gone more than 1,100 nautical miles. If we'd flown a great circle bee-line course eastward we'd just now be landing in Iceland instead of coming back to our base.

Boy, oh boy! If Miss Greene only knew what Uncle Sam's navy has done to the geography she taught me back in the fifth grade!

THOUSANDS GET AMAZING RESULTS WITH "VENDOL"

Columbus lady reports experience with biliousness, dizzy spells, spots before eyes, and other symptoms when due to constipation. Don't delay trying Vendol yourself.

COLUMBUS RESIDENT

Mrs. L. B. Lynn of 524 Cline street says: When I am constipated I have the most terrible symptoms of biliousness such as spots dancing before my eyes, weak, no-good feeling, awaking mornings with a headache, disagreeable taste in my mouth, tongue coated and bad breath, due to constipation.

When the constipation is really bad I often notice my complexion looks muddy and little pimples break out. I get so dizzy when I stoop over that I have to hold something to steady myself till the feeling passes away.

'I heard of many people who took Vendol with excellent results so I couldn't resist trying it too and never in the world did I expect to see such gratifying benefits as Vendol gave me.

This grand medicine gives the most wonderful temporary relief from constipation and with this relief I never feel the symptoms of biliousness, dizzy spells and all the others that usually make me so miserable. I wouldn't take anything for having found Vendol."

Here is one poll where the result speaks for itself—simply . . . directly . . . more powerfully than anything we might say about X-70 gasoline.

To get the facts, Ross Federal Research Corporation recently conducted an impartial survey in 21 Ohio cities, large and small, in all sections of the state. When the results were in it was found that the one gasoline quality most Ohio car owners want more than any other is MILEAGE. And they voted X-70 first choice for mileage by a landslide!—first choice over the next three brands combined!

There's your answer to real gasoline economy—right from motorists who, like yourself, buy a gasoline not because of what it claims to do but what it actually does on the road!

THE STANDARD OIL COMPANY (OHIO)

NEWSPAPERARCHIVE®

GEN. JOHNSON:

By GEN. HUGH S. JOHNSON.

WASHINGTON D. C.—It is certainly encouraging to know that the new SPAB war industries board is now going to try to make a survey of "requirements" of our gigantic war program—what it needs of steel, copper, oil and all other commodities, facilities, power and transportation to supply England, Russia, China and the other "democracies," our own army and navy, and, in a small squeaky rump position, our civilian population.

Johnson

It is encouraging, but it is a hell of a time to be doing it. If it hadn't been written in the book of World War One experience that this was the first step in any industrial mobilization, the common sense that God gave geese should have suggested it.

Instead of that, we pranced up and down in a perfect orgy of priorities, threats of rationing and general disorganization of our economic pattern on cries of "shortage" and famine in supply. The "gasoline shortage" fiasco is a sufficient example without any extended argument on the nature of this blunder.

But a survey of "requirements" is only half of this problem. It is generally conceded that we are or shall be short in some very important items. There are two important things to know.

The first is "how many mouths are there to feed?" That should be determined roughly by a survey of "requirements." But the second is equally important. "How much flour is there left in the barrel to feed them?" That needs just as determined an effort as the study of "requirements." It needs a survey of inventories, sources of supply and, above all, a hard-boiled realistic questioning of any of our many customers for this scant supply as to their actual need.

Something of that sort is also going forward, but it is directed principally against private industries.

Again referring to the gasoline bungle and to the experience of World War One, experience has proved that the principal hoggers, hoarders and devil-take-the-hindmost boys are government supply departments themselves and their associated agencies or contractors.

As has been repeatedly pointed out in this column, the government method to date seems to have been an implicit acceptance of anything these grabbers say as to their needs and imperial decrees granting them by priorities with almost no regard for what may be a destructive effect on the means of living of our civilian population.

No, there isn't enough flour in the barrel to go all the way round. Some system of rationing and control is necessary. That doesn't necessarily mean ration cards and people standing in queues, but it does mean a studious appraisal of both supply and demand—requirements and available materials—and, in defense of our own system, stern denials both to that system and to foreign interests demands that are beyond our reasonable power to produce and deliver.

It is difficult to write with patience about this subject because the principles are so simple, the experience so well authenticated and so frequently insisted upon, that these delays and woefully belated and half-hearted grasping of these principles indicate an incompetence or a prejudice almost beyond belief.

Months in time and billions in money have been wasted in this error. But the worst may be yet to come. If there is not some prompt and realistic application of them the harm soon to be suffered by labor and small enterprise in this country could surpass anything the depression ever produced.

U. S. PREPARES DEADLY HARVEST IN ERIE COUNTY

Workers Will Reap TNT, DNT at Plum Brook Plant, Now 35 Per Cent Complete.

(By United Press)

SANDUSKY — On the same rich Erie county land where only a few months ago life-sustaining farm products were grown, Uncle Sam today is preparing to harvest the deadliest products known to mankind—TNT and DNT explosives.

Althoug construction is a month behind schedule, U. S. army construction engineers predicted that lost time will soon be made up on erection of the $32,000,000 Plum Brook ordnance plant.

It is 35 per cent completed and engineers said that the government will draw more heavily in the near future from private stocks of supply materials under the system of defense priorities.

Construction began April 15. Although the plant is not expected to be finished before next spring, limited production is scheduled to begin Nov. 15.

A host of 5,000 persons—4,000 laborers and 1,000 clerks — are busy, meanwhile, transforming the 9,000-acre plat south of Sandusky into a government arsenal.

Project supervisors yesterday conducted a party of newspapermen on a tour of the administration and manufacturing areas.

They saw a self-contained "city" with a 113 man police department equipped with modern crime prevention equipment; three fire stations and equipment; an eight-bed hospital, completely staffed; a modern cafeteria and restaurant capable of serving 1,000 meals and a huge administration building large enough to house all clerical employes.

Captain Robert Beatty, engineering officer for the area, personally escorted the press party through the three major areas: administration, manufacturing and storage.

Manufacturing capacity of the plant is a military secret along with figures on daily output and TNT storage facilities of the ordnance works.

Every precaution known to safety engineers is employed for workers' safety in the manufacturing area. Huge earthworks separate one building from another in event of an explosion during the processing of the TNT, Captain Beatty explained. Acids are piped to processing houses in glass pipes.

The usual fire escapes on buildings are outmoded. Exits of workers in emergency is by a slide. Because TNT explodes upward, the processing buildings stand on stilts, away from the ground.

The sale of drivers' licenses went into a slump yesterday, after running ahead of last year's sales every day this week. With 11 clerks on duty to handle the usual rush, only 351 licenses were sold yesterday as compared to 417 for the corresponding day a year ago, according to Jack Berger, assistant secretary of the Richland County Auto club.

Harold W. Arlin, Westinghouse personnel director and one of the country's first radio announcers, had a surprise waiting for him when he returned home the other day from a business trip to Pittsburgh. While in the city, he stopped off for a visit at the broadcasting booth at Forbes field, home of the Pittsburgh Pirates. The announcer interrupted his story of the ball game to tell of Arlin's visit and his former connection with station KDKA in Pittsburgh. Arlin didn't know he was mentioned on the air until Mansfield friends began to rib him about taking time out from his business to see a baseball game.

City hall employes may soon be able to stay their thirst or hunger with items from a concession stand in the Municipal building. Mayor William J. The stand would be the same type as that maintained by James Lemley in the Richland county courthouse.

OPM officials chuckled yesterday while telling of a manufacturer who presented detailed plans to produce a certain item for national defense. The OPM men said that the company official had the specifications for an article, telling its weight, size, shape, composition and several features. The only thing bothering the manufacturer was that he didn't know of any defense machinery needing the article. "Don't worry, we told him," said the OPM men, "we'll see if we can't get the government to design a machine which would need your product."

STREETS AND HOMES DARK 4 HOURS IN 'WAR'

Power Turned on at Dawn as Governor Calls Out Unit of Home Guard.

(By Associated Press)

KANSAS CITY — A dramatic power strike which blacked out this city of 400,000 during most of the night appeared broken at dawn, before the vast majority of Kansas citians were even aware it had been called.

Paralyzed for hours, the city gave every indication of returning to normalcy after a night that saw street cars and electrical buses halted in their tracks, hospitals darkened and the municipal water supply gravely threatened.

The strike—climax of a jurisdictional labor union dispute—brought a call for Missouri's Gov. Forrest C. Donnell for one battalion of the state's recently-organized home guard to assemble for duty and for another to stand by for a possible call.

Master switches of the Kansas City Power and Light Co., were thrown at the stroke of midnight to launch the strike with breath-taking suddenness.

Threatened with complete shutdown was the city's entire industrial activity, much of it given over to defense work.

But after four hours of darkness, non-striking workers started two turbines at the company's main plant, and soon other units of the large plant were operating.

Donnell's order made no reference to the power strike, but he told reporters in Jefferson City:

"The state will insist on the strikers returning to work, pending mediation or adjustment of differences, and we'll offer the facilities of the state to provide mediation."

The AFL International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers originally set a Sept. 7 deadline for the strike, but it was rescinded after the national defense mediation board took cognizance of the controversy and asked that work continue pending its disposition of the case.

The AFL affiliate, recognized bargaining agency for 350 production employes of the plant, demanded that it also represent 200 overhead workers and a dozen employes in the steam department. The company contended the overhead workers were members of the Independent Union of Utility Employes, with which it had signed a contract for its members.

The company recently appealed from a regional labor board decision that the Independent Union was company dominated.

The mediation board in Washington ruled yesterday that the inter-union dispute came within the jurisdiction of the labor board and the United States Court of Appels.

Hearing of the company's appeal is scheduled to come before the appeals court Oct. 11.

JURY IN LUKENS TRIAL CHARGED

Statement From Judge Final Episode In Action on Akron Case.

(By Associated Press)

AKRON — Judge Walter B. Wanamaker's charge to the jury today was the final episode in the trial of Albert B. Lukens, 58-year-old church janitor accused of slaying Ruth Zwicker, 24.

The state and defense are agreed that Miss Zwicker's death occurred at the church for which Lukens was janitor, and where she had gone to practice on the piano. Lukens also admitted cremating her body in a church furnace Easter Sunday, testifying that he disposed of the body because he feared an investigation of her death.

Prosecutor Alva J. Russell asked the jury yesterday to convict Lukens of first degree murder and send him to the electric chair. The state contends the janitor choked Miss Zwicker after attempting to commit rape.

E. Guy Hammond, defense counsel, declared in his concluding statement that his client was "not even guilty of assault and battery." Lukens testified that he asked the young pianist for a kiss and that her death resulted from a fall against the piano at which she had been practicing.

HOOVER SEES DANGER TO U. S. AT LOWEST SINCE WAR BEGAN

CHICAGO — (U.P.) — Former President Herbert Hoover said last night that the danger to America is less than at any time since the war began and warned that if the United States enters the conflict "we will see the wells of freedom dried up behind us."

Speaking as "The Voice of Experience" because of his participation in the events of the last war, Hoover said it had been proved that America cannot impose its freedoms and ideals upon the world.

"We should not again sacrifice our sons for that will-o'-the-wisp," he said. "We can contribute more if we are not exhausted morally, economically and militarily by sending our boys into this war."

Hoover addressed the nation over the Columbia radio network.

He said the fear and hate engendered in the last war defeated the idealism of President Wilson and likewise would defeat the "four freedoms" of President Roosevelt.

"There are other ways than going into this war to secure reparation for transgression of our just rights and respect for them," he said.

"The first trench in the battle for the four freedoms is to maintain them in America x x x failure of congress to assert its responsibilities or for the executive to take war-like steps without the approval of the congress is a direct destruction of the safeguards of freedom. We are on the way to weaken these freedoms in America x x x."

Hoover offered a five-point program for the establishment of the four freedoms advanced by President Roosevelt and endorsed by Prime Minister Churchill in the historic sea conference. The program included:

An end to name calling; the addition of "economic freedom" to the other four and respect for this freedom in the preparedness program; aid to the "democracies alone," apparently excluding Russia; an end to provocative steps leading to war; and the taking of no warlike step without the approval of congress.

CALL OFF FAIR

Fourth Street Merchants Decide Against Frolic.

Following meetings yesterday and Monday, the Fourth Street Merchants association decided to give up plans for a street fair this fall such as was staged a year ago in celebration of the opening of the new paved street.

George Satterlee, president of the association, explained today that too many obstacles stood in the way of further fairs on the street.

"Since the street is now part of the federal as well as state highway system, we'd have to get federal and state permission to close it for a fair," Satterlee said. "And after the difficulty we had routing main traffic on the street we didn't think it good policy to close it to traffic again."

Mayor William J. Locke and Service-Safety Director C. M. Crafton plan to attend the outing as will other city officials. No speeches will be allowed, according to Hughes.

CHAPTER III.

He held a double barreled shotgun and he obviously meant just what he said. Dallas Tower stared a moment at him, incredulous.

"For God's sake, man, nobody can steal your land!" Dallas spoke impatiently. "We're just trying to cross it to get back to the road and—"

"You go 'round. Nobody can set foot here. I aim to protect my rights, you hear?"

Astounded, Dallas Tower paused a moment to look around at the multitude that seemingly had sprung from nowhere. Gazing calmly, he could see a purposeful manner in these people. For no good reason he glanced at his wrist watch. Ten-thirty-five. Midnight coming. But he knew there would be no sleep in this town tonight. He saw two men fighting, and wondered why. He and Lillian and Martin walked—Martin had said nothing to the belligerent farmer—and came by three men arguing with a fourth.

"A measly confounded thousand dollars an acre?" one was shouting. "Hell no! Ten thousand is only a—"

"But look here, a lease is still a big gamble even if a well has come in." A man with paper in his hand shouted that.

"I've got to get to a telephone!" yelled another somewhere at hand. "I'll give $25 to the man who'll take me to a telephone quick!"

* * *

Dallas had paused to drink in this queer melange. Lillian, plunging hurriedly on at Martin's lead, glanced back. The doctor stepped up onto a pine stump. He was like a young god there or like some heroic statue symbolizing strength, for his fine profile was etched in striking outline against the flare beyond.

"Dallas!" she called.

He jumped down and again ran after them. More people were in their way. Several shouted at Lillian and Martin, some in hilarity some in excited tones or in fear. Off somewhere was a chorus of voices actually singing improvised words to a fast moving tune. "Oil well, oil well, oil well!" they chanted insanely. Cars were snorting as starters functioned, and when the trio reached the roadway again it was almost blocked with automobiles going in both directions.

"What are you speeding back to town for?" Dallas shouted in one sedan window, his face intent.

"It's a lease rush, mister! Don't you know what oil means? The closer you can lease to the well, the more valuable your land is. Big day's coming to this county! I aim to get a banker out of bed in Fort Worth, myself. He owns some property just across the creek. If we can make him sell a whole or part interest in his mineral rights . . . telephone conversation with witnesses . . . you got any money yourself, mister? . . . the ground floor."

His car rolled on and his last words were jerky, incoherent, but Dallas thought he understood. He wasn't interested. He was anxious only to get to the hospital where he had sent the burned men.

They came to his sedan parked by the fence and Dallas called out.

"Hey, Lillian, here it is. Here's our car."

She had been 15 feet or so ahead of him, still led forcefully by Martin. She stopped, though, and turned to go back, pulling her hand free. Martin joined her as she came to Dallas again.

"Look here!" Martin's tone was deadly. It was the first time he had spoken in quite a while anyway. "Lillian isn't going with you, Tower."

"Hunh?" Dallas turned to him, quizzical.

"I am taking charge of Miss Mayfield myself. I had no idea you would subject her to such indignities as you have this evening, not to mention the actual danger. Evidently you don't know who—"

"Martin!" Lillian was distressed anew.

Dallas just stood at his car door, spread legged, frowning and gazing down at the smaller man. Then he murmured as if to himself. "I'll be damned! Right out of a book." He stood a moment, breathing deeply from exhaustion. His hair was awry, his clothing snagged and smudged badly as if he had been in a fight.

Martin had taken Lillian's elbow, but Dallas' hand shot out to grab his wrist.

"Don't be a fool!" the young doctor warned. "What do you think I am? I started out with a girl, and I intend to take care of her now!"

"Unhand me, Tower, before I forget myself!"

The words were clipped, melodramatic. Dallas Tower had a sudden impulse to smile because they sounded so much like a line from a tent show drama. But he saw that Martin Deale certainly was not acting.

"I'm not trying to 'handle' you," Dallas shot back. "I'm just saying that Lillian Mayfield is my date. And I mean it!"

"Miss Mayfield is coming with me, Tower."

"Listen——!"

Martin jerked his wrist free of Dallas' grip. Then he turned to take Lillian's elbow and almost forced her to walk ahead of him.

Dallas' chin dropped in astonishment. He saw Lillian try to say something more, but people shouting and running beside them and the roar of the well made it impossible to hear her. He and Martin had been forced to shout their words. He held out one hand now as if in supplication. Then his lips snapped tight again and he strode forward.

The other two were not running and so Dallas came up behind them easily. With no words or other warning, he simply stooped and picked Lillian Mayfield up.

"Oh!" It was a quite involuntary cry, not loud.

She was literally sitting in Dallas Tower's arms, and held very close to his muscular body. She had a vague impression of faces passing by, familiar faces of townspeople, some turned curiously toward her now. But most people were still running and calling out in excitement. Glare from the gas-oil gusher gave everything a weird theatrical illumination.

"Dallas, you—" she tried to talk. She tried to glance back but his big shoulder prevented. He was carrying her back to his car, she knew. "Dallas! Whatever——" You don't understand why Mar—"

"Am I hurting you?" he almost yelled it, to make himself heard. The well added a new hiss to its roaring.

"NO!" she shouted in his ear. "BUT I DON'T WANT—"

"I'LL TAKE YOU RIGHT HOME! DON'T DORRY!"

"HI, LILLIAN!" somebody from the crowd shrieked that. "ISN'T IT ALL SO EXCITING? WHY DON'T YOU COME AND——" the friend's voice was engulfed in other sounds then, and the friend went unrecognized. But whoever it was had seen Dallas Tower carrying her. Dallas Tower, the new young doctor in town.

A matter of seconds brought them back to his car again and there Martin Deale caught up with them. He would have spoken, perhaps did speak but was not heard.

Dallas and Lillian saw the pale tautness of his face, saw him reach out a hand there beside the car. Dallas has stopped a bit to catch the car door handle, with the hand he held under Lillian, but when Martin appeared he quietly turned.

Abruptly, efficiently, Dallas acted. He did not drop the girl to fight, and he did not talk. He lifted one foot and placed the sole of it in Martin Deale's midriff! Woosh! Martin sat down, hard, several feet away.

It was not a kick. Dallas had simply planted his foot quickly, braced against the car, then shoved.

"Hey! Look!" A stranger saw it, several spectators in fact. Lillian was aghast. Milling people, already excited, stopped here at this monetary by-play. Lillian tried again to say something but was not heard.

Dallas ignored them all. He had not hesitated. After pushing Martin down he opened the car door, sat Lillian inside as tenderly as he would a child and closed the door again. He walked around front to the driver's side and in a moment was slowly backing the car.

With the little show apparently over people began to move on, but enough of them had crowded up with necks craning and faces lighted excitedly and elbows pushing to completely engulf Martin Deale. That young man was so surprised that he had to have help to regain his feet. He was not hurt, physically; he was bewildered, and furious.

He started running toward the car a moment too late. Dallas had backed around slowly to avoid hurting someone, and now was moving forward toward the roadway again.

"STOP WHERE YOU ARE!" Martin roared. Then repeated, "STOP! . . . STOP!"

Somebody grinned at him and said, "Look like he up and took her, mister."

Then another spectator shouted near to him, "Who was it, Martin. Who was it took Lillian Mayfield away?"

* * *

For one thing, Dallas had a task of driving. The road was a jam of cars and pedestrians all rushing toward him. They had preempted both halves of the road proper and even made a stream flowing against him out on the unpaved right-of-way. People cursed him for trying to go against traffic.

This surge of humanity awed Lillian Mayfield, or appeared to. Dallas glanced at her once. She sat gazing out the car window and windshield like a person in a trance. He thought to say something to her, maybe try to apologize for ruining their first evening together, but changed his mind. The unprecedented excitement this night—the oil well that had blasted itself in, the long toil of rescuing and doctoring men so burned that they cried in agony, the little clash with that hometown swain of hers—all had combined to tax Lillian's strength and nerves, Dallas realized. But she had been a game kid! plenty nervy, helping him back there. He wondered how she felt now, what she was thinking. He wished she wasn't such a complete stranger to him.

"All right?" he finally asked, loudly. He couldn't look at her, but had to fight his steering wheel.

She did not reply.

"YOU FEEL OKAY?" he shouted then. He knew she heard it clearly.

Still she gave no answer, no sign that he had spoken at all. He glanced toward her. The glow in his car was too dim to learn anything from her face, but he began to sense the new tension here. This Mayfield girl doubtless was offended. Mayfield, a good old southern name. He, Dallas Tower a stranger, had put her through an undignified experience. Now she was in a huff and perhaps a justified one.

He said no more. Maybe he had it coming to him. That fellow Deale, had stuck his neck in and—but then maybe Deale had a point, too. After all Deale felt a natural sense of proprietorship over good-looking Lillian Mayfield, and there was no denying her good looks! He had heard that Texas girls were the world's prettiest. Every state claims that, naturally, but maybe this sprawly southwestern country really had something. He, Dr. Dallas Tower, had long considered himself immune to women, therapeutically speaking; but if a fellow ever did have to succumb, here was a swell chance!

He made no further effort to talk; anyway here was Rangeville again. Traffic thinned so that he swung through Public square, past the old courthouse with its rim of poplar trees like stately sentinels, and down East Main. Soon he was on North Marshall street again, pulling up under the Mayfield parking tree.

Here he would have said something, but Lillian jumped out and ran. He watched her go tap-tap-tap up the long walk. So she was down on him, definitely, eh? He was sorry. Genuinely sorry. But he felt he had nothing for which to apologize.

He was still moody about it an hour later at the hospital.

* * *

He had gone directly there from Lillian's. It turned out that some of the burned men were critical. Moreover, nine emergency patients came in as a result of the traffic rush, two dying. This small hospital had only two nurses. And the oil gusher excitement seemed to have lured all other physicians away so that Dallas had his hands more than full. He worked grimly, ignoring fatigue, thinking often of her and marveling that she had adapted herself instantly as an emergency nurse with him out there at the flaming well.

He had just turned from a little room where a negro lay badly wounded, and down the white hallway came Lillian herself. His face brightened, but she spoke first.

"Dallas!" she stopped near him, to look at his face and to talk in that semi-whisper essential in hospitals at night. "I apologize for acting snobbish. I—you were not—it was Martin who butted in. You couldn't help being a stranger. Or acting as you did. We are too stiff and clannish in Rangeville, and I know it! . . . These burned men, Dallas—may I help you some more now?"

He gazed straight into her eyes. Impulsively he grasped both her shoulders then, stooped and kissed her full on the lips.

All Tyger Grid Foes See Action In Week-End Games

Sport Podge by REX HESS

Jesse Williams, who writes Asapp's Sport Fables for the Tiffin Advertiser-Tribune, is having a bit of fun with the old Podger and with Dick Behr of the Fremont News-Messenger.

After this department opened a campaign for visibility in the press box at Stadium field last week, Behr started a similar drive for the right to see the football games he's supposed to cover at Fremont.

And Williams, knowing he'd have all the comforts of home in the fine press coop at the new Tiffin stadium, sat back and chortled.

* * *

Said Williams: "Dick Behr and Rex Hess, sports scribes of the Mansfield and Fremont papers, are a comfort one unto the other. The boys are in a deep dish dither over the lack of facilities afforded the fourth estate in their stadia and are howling to the heavens in the hope that something will be done to improve their plight.

"According to their common plaint, the press boxes are too small and one has to be a contortionist in order to peer around window sashes to get an occasional glimpse of the games.

* * *

"I can sympathize with those wronged warriors of the written word," continues Jesse, "for I played peek-a-boo on almost every play while watching games at Redwood stadium.

* * *

"Our new stadium, though, has one of the best press boxes around these parts, thanks to some thoughtful planning on the part of the men in charge.

"Well boys," concludes Jesting Jesse the Wily Williams, "when you want to SEE a game, COME UP AND SEE ME SOMETIME!"

* * *

Thanks, Jesse, for those kind words. I know they come straight from the depths of your chilly heart.

But they've opened up the portholes in our press shanty, and we can see all the way across the field now, and can even bring the goal posts into focus.

* * *

Covering football games here now will be just a breeze.
Hah, you think not?

The golf banquet season gets under way tomorrow night at Possum Run when the News-Journal B-leaguers gather round the 19th hole and recount their woes of the past season.

I'm glad there aren't as many golf leagues as there are bowling leagues, and I hope the niblick swingers aren't as serious in their celebration as the pin smashers.

* * *

It took me all summer to get back in shape after that merry-go-round with the bowlers last spring, and I wouldn't want to spend the winter recuperating from the golf fiestas only to have the bowlers hop up and smack me down in the spring.

* * *

So let there be no moaning at the bar—
I mean:
Let there be no tears in the beer—
That is:
Let there be no sobbing in the soup when I put out to sea.

Brooklyn's Plurality Cut Again

Reds Snare 11-Inning Tilt From Destiny's Dodgers.

By JUDSON BAILEY
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Destiny's Dodger's can do no wrong these days and even when they lose fate figures out some way to compensate them.

* * *

Brooklyn ran into a 4-3 11-inning pitfall yesterday at Cincinnati, and the game scarcely had ended before darkness descended on St. Louis and blacked out the Cardinals and New York Giants in a 1-1 10-inning tie.

* * *

This shaved the Dodgers' National League lead from two games to a game and a half, but on a lone-range basis the Cardinals' tie was almost as damaging as a defeat.

It figures out this way:

Brooklyn has won 92 games, lost 51, and has 11 to play.

St. Louis has won 89, lost 51 and has 13 to play.

* * *

Thus the Dodgers will play 154 games this season to 153 for St. Louis and if both teams lose the same number of games, Brooklyn still will take the championship.

* * *

The stalemate was a shock to St. Louis. The Cards had beaten the feeble Giants 15 out of 21 times previously, including a doubleheader Sunday, and were right on the verge of hanging up a 1-0 classic conquest yesterday when the Giants deadlocked the game.

Ernie White, the Redbirds' great young lefthander, had shut out the Giants for eight innings on four hits and looked certain to acquire his 18th victory. Then with one out in the ninth, Morrie Arnovich singled and Billy Jurges doubled. Lon Warneke hurried to rescue White, but Mickey Witek singled the tying run across.

The schedule leaves no opportunity for replaying the contest.

* * *

The affair at Cincinnati was almost equally tight. Elmer (The Great) Riddle allowed only six hits and didn't give an earned run in the nine innings he worked. The Reds made a dozen hits off four Brooklyn pitchers and tagged Hugh Casey with the defeat.

* * *

In the day's only other National League game the Boston Braves beat the Chicago Cubs, 8-5.

Chet Laabs drove in five runs to lead the St. Louis Browns to a 9-8 victory over the Philadelphia Athletics for a sweep of their four-game series. The Detroit Tigers bunched their efforts to whip the Washington Senators, 4-2.

Sophs Hold Grid Answer

Buckeye Coaches Filling Vacancies With Them.

(By Associated Press)

Sophomores may hold the answer to Ohio's 1941 collegiate football puzzle.

With the season's opening at hand, Buckeye coaches everywhere are pushing none-too-experienced second year men into key positions left vacant by graduation, the call to colors and defense jobs.

At Ohio Northern five promising ex-frosh have brightened a picture made dark by the loss of three veterans. Frank Snyder, a blocking halfback, has joined the army and two other 1940 stalwarts won't be back because of injuries. Howard Greer, 220-pound tackle, was droped because of a bad knee and Tom Pierson of Copley was drafted as freshman coach when injuries made him unavailable for play this year.

Coach Clarence (Doc) Spears of the University of Toledo said several sophs would be in his starting lineup. Spears has upon his hands the job of replacing Halfbacks Russ Davis and Carl Santi and Wingman Bill Kissane, who quit the Rockets' gridiron for army parade grounds.

Coach Don Peden of Ohio university searched through yearling ranks for a wingback, essential to a new offensive he is planning.

SENATOR ABBE WINS GRAND CIRCUIT RACE

DELAWARE, O.—(AP)—Senator Abbe of O. H. Lowen's Wilmington, O., stables captured the $5,000 Scioto pace that featured the opening program of Delaware's grand circuit harness racing yesterday.

Senator Abbe cost $100 as a colt, and only recently Lowen refused an offer of $7,500 for him. Son of Bert Abbe, he won the event easily in times of 2:04½ and 2:03.

Veterans Help At Appleseed

Squad of 60 Trimmed To 36 By Coach Cameron.

Owning a fine balance of experienced regulars and promising newcomers, Coach Paul Cameron already has trimmed an original squad of 60 Johnny Appleseed Junior high gridiron hopefuls to a group of 36 and is picking his lineup for the first game of the season, Sept. 26, at Butler against the Butler reserves.

* * *

We expect to play our alloted limit of six games," Cameron said, "and we want the John Simpson game to come last on the schedule."

* * *

Cameron has four backfield players left from last season, Frank Beckel, Gerald Zeller, Leslie Myers and Chester Miller. Returning linemen are Bob Hall, guard, Earl Wendell, center, Dick Haley, tackle and Murray Swihart, end.

He has uncovered one promising new back, Russell Stuckey, and several outstanding new linemen, including Luther Cupp, guard, a transfer student from Lorain, Junior DeVore, guard, Sheldon Shaffer, tackle, and Denzel Blake, end.

* * *

* * *

The Appleseed eleven expects to be togged out in new uniforms this fall, which were ordered several weeks ago but have not yet arrived.

Millers Finally Cop Playoff Game

(By Associated Press)

Minneapolis, which never has won an American Association playoff and is a long way from the title this year, is trying to keep its hand in proceedings as long as possible.

* * *

With Louisville, its semi-final playoff foe, poised for the kill in four straight, the Millers interrupted the Colonels' streak at three straight yesterday to take the fourth tilt of the series, 9 to 3, on a seven-run outburst in the fifth inning.

* * *

That meant Columbus, winner of the other semi-final series, must wait a few days more before the final playoffs can begin. A victory this afternoon by Louisville, of course, would complete the lineup of finalists at once.

Here's Reds' Run That Trimmed Dodgers

Under the guidance of a new coach, Paul Brown, successful high school mentor at Massillon, O., the Buckeyes of Ohio State university are preparing for an early opener this year. The Bucks meet Missouri in Columbus, Sept. 27, before launching their Western conference schedule. Here Brown shows his squad a few plays on the blackboard.

County Golf Joust Booked

Committee Named For Annual Medal Tourney.

Plans have been completed for the second annual Richland county golf tournament to be decided in 36 holes of medal play at Westbrook Country club Sunday, Sept. 28. The program calls for 18 holes of golf in the morning, and 18 in the afternoon.

Entries are being limited to players with a handicap of 10 strokes or less over the 18-hole route, but even with a limited entry list, committee members said today they expect between 40 and 50 club swingers to take part in the event.

The entry fee has been placed at $3, which includes green fees and prize money.

Emmerson Weller has been named chairman of the tournament committee and all entries are to be mailed to him at his home, 383 Overlook road. Entries close Wednesday night, Sept. 24, so that pairings and the schedule of tee-times may be arranged.

The remainder of the tournament committee is composed of one representative from each Richland county course, Gene Zediker of Westbrook, Steve Stirtzinger of Coolridge, Pete Linster of Possum Run and Mr. Bricker of Shelby.

Joe Mayer won last year's inaugural tournament at Possum Run shooting 68-69—137, or seven under par for the 36 holes.

WINS TOURNEY

ST. PAUL—(AP)—Emil Mascioccchi of Chicago won the national greenskeeping superintetndents' golf tournament yesterday with a 36-hole score of 69-75—144. Two Ohioans finished in show and place positions. Nelson Monical of Leroy was second with 75-75—150, and Don Boyd of Akron came in third with 8-76—157.

Ward, Omaha Get Together

Amateur Golf Champion Quiets Aroused Citizens.

OMAHA, Neb — (INS) — National Amateur Golf Champion Marvin "Bud" Ward of Spokane, Wash., departed from Omaha today assured that this city where last month he won his second national crown holds him no grudge. Ward in turn made it plain that Omaha is "aces" with him, too.

* * *

Omaha and Ward had a little misunderstanding during the national tourney at the Omaha Field club a few weeks ago. Ward was misquoted as saying he thought the course was punk, and local fans showed their resentment.

* * *

But yesterday the little fuss was cleared up in a goodwill match between Ward and Hometown Hero Johnny Goodman for the benefit of Father Flanagan's Boys' town. Ward rallied on the last eight holes to win the match, one up. Both he and Goodman had 74's, two over par. Boys' Town benefited to the extent of $460, in addition to a check for $1,000 presented the institution by Ward on behalf of the Spokane athletic round table.

Mansfield Takes on Akron City Champions

All Three Richland County Class B Schools Scheduled Friday

THE HIGH SCHOOL grid lid pops off with a bang this week-end with Mansfield's Tygers tangling with Akron's city champion West eleven at Stadium field Friday night, and every one of the Tygers' opponents of the 1941 season getting into action.

All of Mansfield's '41 foes open at home with the exception of Cleveland Central, and all of them play on Friday with the exception of the Cleveland team.

Once more for the benefit of Tyger followers who haven't yet stored away a copy of this year's Mansfield schedule, here's the season's program:

* * *

Sept. 19—Akron West.
Sept. 26—At Elyria.
Oct. 3—Sandusky.
Oct. 10—At Newark.
Oct. 17—Springfield.
Oct. 24—At Massillon.
Oct. 31—Cleveland Central.
Nov. 7—Canton McKinley.
Nov. 15—Shelby.
Nov. 20—Fremont.

* * *

Going through the list of Mansfield opponents, here's the way they'll raise the football curtain this week-end: Elyria entertains Oberlin but it should be Elyria that enjoys the entertainment most; Sandusky plays host to Cleveland Collinwood, and the new Sandusky coaching staff may find the Railroaders tough; Newark shouldn't have too much trouble with Columbus West; Canton McKinley as usual will be favored over Canton Timken but this growing rivalry has developed into more than a cake-walk for the Bulldog; Coach Jim McDonald is reported to have a power-house at Springfield that should roll over Cincinnati Norwood; Massillon is still Massillon and expects to take Werrton, but the West Virginians play tough football and may give the Tigers a real test; little is known yet of the strength of Cleveland Central which takes on Cleveland John Adams; Shelby, talking championship again, tackles Norwalk; Fremont, with a new coach and reportedly new spirit, is expected to have the edge over Bellevue.

But the Tygers and their playmates are not the only ones who'll be booting the football around this week-end.

* * *

All three Richland county class B teams get into action Friday. Madison is booked for a big opening day ceremony at New London at 3 p. m., Bellville plays host to Coach Harry Mehock's Mansfield high Reserves in an afternoon tilt, and Butler's light team will tangle with Centerburg at Butler.

* * *

North Central Ohio league teams also get their baptism of grid-fire, and some of them, notably Bucyrus, are taking on tough opposition. The Red Men travel to Tiffin to do battle with Columbian, currently listed among the favorites for the Buckeye league title. Tiffin Calvert, not rated as tough as Columbian, helps Galion lift the lid.

* * *

Marion brings in a Cleveland team, John Marshall, for the opener, Ashland travels to Willard where Dave Query is reported to have another big aggregation comparable in size to those of the Langhurst days, and Mt. Vernon expects to win its home opener with Columbus St. Mary.

* * *

Two Mansfield area teams get together at Crestline; which plays host to Mt. Gilead, defeated last week in a practice game by its alumni. And Loudonville, playing its first game under Coach Leo Grimes, opens at home with Danville furnishing the opposition.

Connie Mack Picks Yanks For Series

PHILADELPHIA —(AP)— Connei Mack doesn't care whether the Dodgers or the Cardinals win the National league pennant—he picks the Yankees to win the world series.

* * *

What's more, the alert 78-year-old manager of the Athletics thinks the series will last only five or six games.

* * *

"Yes, I think it will be the Yankees," he declared. "Who can beat them? They have such power and pitching. The possible loss of Keller (Charley Keller, outfielder, who is expected to be out with a leg injury) wil' not be a blow as it might to other clubs. The Yanks have too much."

NEW YORK—(INS)—With practically all seats gone, the Brooklyn Dodgers downtown ticket office already is returning orders for World series seats, less than 24 hours after opening the sale.

Rams Lead Pro Football Loop

CHICAGO—(AP)—The Cleveland Rams, second losingest team in the western division of the National football league last year, currently have the best record in the loop.

* * *

Their 10 to 6 victory over the Chicago Cardinals last night not only was their second triumph in two league games but also caused Jimmy Conzelman's Cardinals to start the season at the bottom of the standings, which is where they finished last year.

* * *

The Rams had beaten the Pittsburgh Steelers in their previous game, 17 to 14.

Coaches Work Teams Harder

Big Ten Mentors Hike Football Practice Tempo.

CHICAGO—(AP)—Football practice is proceeding at more than normal tempo at four Big Ten schools — Michigan, Ohio State, Minnesota, and Purdue — all because less than a dozen days are left before critical opening games.

* * *

Michigan must prepare for its big intra-state battle with Michigan State. Purdue must get ready for Vanderbilt. Minnesota has a long jaunt out to Washington and Ohio State must take on Missouri. All these games come on Sept. 27.

* * *

Thus it's no wonder that Fritz Crisler at Michigan is beginning to wonder just who is going to replace Harmon and Evashevski and Frutig and other lads of that calibre from last year.

It's no surprise that Bernie Bierman should get disgruntled over the showing of the Minnesota Gophers and tell the boys just what's wrong, and what he wants done about it.

* * *

There's practically nothing strange in the way that Paul Brown, at Ohio State, shifts his players back and forth and leaves starting posts much in doubt.

* * *

And Mal Elward's rising excitement over finding a good kicker is quite in accord with what you'd expect at a time like this. It's a healthy sign that the coaches are getting keyed up for the season and that the start of action is drawing close.

Eastern oystermen refer to the small Pacific Coast oysters as "thumbnail" oysters.

Buck Gridders Prepare For Early Opener

Umpire Reardon calls Ernie Joost's slide home safe in the 11th inning as he scores on Billy Werber's single which gave the Reds a 4 to 3 victory over the Brooklyn Dodgers in this last game of their blazing series in Cincinnati. This win for the Reds gave them a taste of revenge against the Dodgers who had mathematically eliminated them as National league pennant contenders.

Nova Forgets Yogi, Preps With Louis Match Looming

By HARRY FERGUSON

POMPTON LAKES, N. J.—(U.P.)—Lou Nova stuck out a big brown paw and Ray Arcel, his trainer, started winding bandages around it.

"You weighed yet?" Arcel asked.

* * *

Nova shook his head from side to side and walked over to a corner of the dressing room and stepped on the scales. It showed 210½.

* * *

"That's fine," Arcel said, "that gives us some margin to work on." Nova nodded and held out his hands for the bandages again.

Two things strike you as you drive over the George Washington bridge through the green New Jersey countryside to this camp where Nova is preparing for the fight of his life against Joe Louis a week from Monday:

1. Nova is in superb physical condition. In fact, the job that Arcel has now is to keep him from going stale.

2. Nova's spirits are high. He isn't going to be afraid of Louis and despite advice from his seconds he probably is going to slug it out with the champion.

Nova worked three rounds yesterday against three sparring partners and he was rarin' to go. He seems to be getting close to a fighting edge, and he also seems to have forgotten a lot of the screwball stuff that he has given out in the last year. During four hours at the camp yesterday he didn't mention the cosmic punch and he didn't stand on his head or do any of the other Yogi stuff. He looked like a young man who suddenly has realized that the golden chance of a lifetime has arrived.

Arcel, a slender man who is recognized as one of the best trainers in the business, probably knows as much about how to fight Louis as anybody. He has been in the corner opposite the champion nine times, and keeps in condition by dragging fighters to the corner after Louis has belted 'em out. His job with Nova is mainly a psychological one.

"I've seen some fighters who were worried about Louis. I don't mean that they were scared necessarily, but they thought about the fight too much while they were training. Lou doesn't do that. He's got a pretty good idea what he wants to do when he gets into the ring, so we don't have to go into that much."

Brown Makes Two Changes

Moves Captain, Sophomore To First String.

COLUMBUS — (U.P.) — Captain Jack Stephenson of the Ohio State football team was on the first team today for the first time since the Bucks started practice last Wednesday.

* * *

* * *

Csuri, 204-pound Cleveland Sophomore who had been at the No. 1 right tackle spot since the first day of practice, moved down to the second team but Brown added that there still was not too much difference between the two players.

Paul Sarringhaus, Hamilton Sophomore, was promoted to the first team left halfback slot as Dick Fisher, veteran Senior, was placed on the second team.

* * *

Sarringhaus wore his new pair of contact lenses for the second straight day and reported after practice that "they have helped me 25 per cent."

* * *

Johnny Hallabrin, Senior quarterback from Mansfield, was on the sidelines again with his bruised ribs and Trainer Tucker Smith says he probably will have to remain inactive for at least another day or two.

Shelby Opens Grid Season

Team Opens Against Norwalk Friday.

SHELBY — Five veterans will form the nucleus for the 1941 edition of the Shelby high school football team that opens its schedule with Norwalk high school at 8 p. m., Friday, on W. W. Skiles athletic field.

* * *

Tackling and blocking drills have been stressed this week to finish conditioning of the squad which is rated one of Shelby's best in recent years.

* * *

A veteran backfield including Bob Laubie at quarterback, Junior Bonecutter, left half; Wayne Briggs, right half, and George York, fullback, is expected to carry the brunt of the games.

* * *

Because the line has only one veteran back, Jim Nimmons, a backfielder of last season, Bob Ernsberger, has been moved to an end. Other players expected to see action on the line are Dean Metz, tackle; John Elliott and Don Riland, guards; and Donald Broderick, center.

* * *

The Whippets this fall average heavier in weight than Shelby teams in the past, but speed will still be an important part of the defense, said Coach William Query.

Some 40 candidates reported for the squad.

Want World Series To Start Day Later

NEW YORK — (INS) — The New York City council today awaited a decision by Judge K. M. Landis, commissioner of baseball, whether he would change the date of the first game in the World series.

The council unanimously passed a resolution asking the opening game of the annual classic be shifted from Oct. 1 to Oct. 2 because, as now scheduled, the inaugural performance will be held on Yom Kippur, the Jewish day of Atonement.

Incidentally, you can't beg, buy or borrow a reserved or box seat ticket for the first, second and sixth games of the World series—at least, not from the New York Yankees.

All 41,000 of the box and reserved seats for these games scheduled in Yankee stadium have been sold.

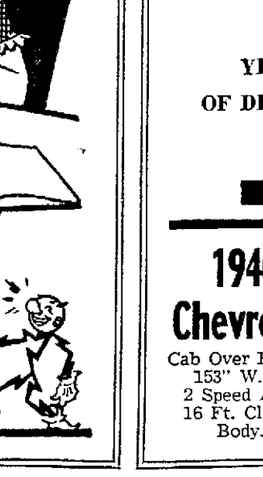
SERIOUS DEFECTS NOTED IN CARS:
Brakes 34%
Tires 48%
Lamps 69%



No person should permit the figures in the table above to lead them into the fallacy that mechanically defective cars are relatively unimportant as a contributing factor in the occurrence of automobile accidents.

Playful children bound for school—your children and our children who tomorrow may be cripples of the highways because it is a known fact that tests made of 3,200,000 cars in a number of states that three out of every four registered are dangerous not only to children but to you and your family, because of some defect in their safety equipment.

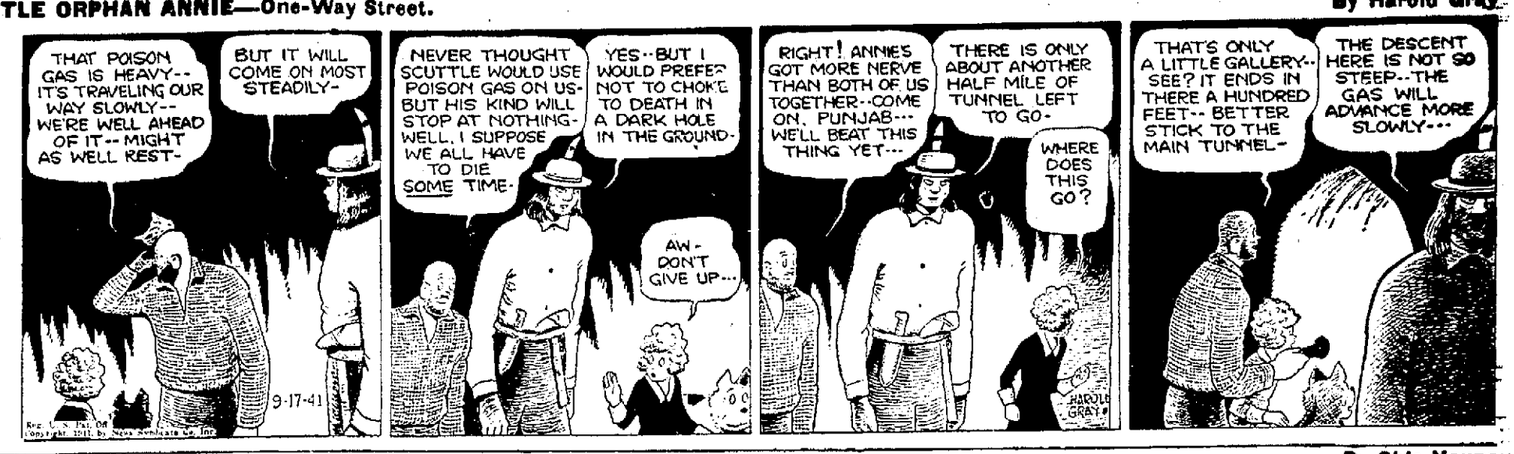
POPEYE— Pardon My Heel, You Heel!

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE—One-Way Street. By Harold Gray



THAT POISON GAS IS HEAVY—IT'S TRAVELING OUR WAY SLOWLY—WE'RE WELL AHEAD OF IT—MIGHT AS WELL REST-
BUT IT WILL COME ON MOST STEADILY-
9-17-41
NEVER THOUGHT SCUTTLE WOULD USE POISON GAS ON US-BUT HIS KIND WILL STOP AT NOTHING-WELL, I SUPPOSE WE ALL HAVE TO DIE SOME TIME-
YES—BUT I WOULD PREFER NOT TO CHOKE TO DEATH IN A DARK HOLE IN THE GROUND-
AW-DON'T GIVE UP—
RIGHT! ANNIE'S GOT MORE NERVE THAN BOTH OF US TOGETHER—COME ON, PUNJAB—WE'LL BEAT THIS THING YET—
THERE IS ONLY ABOUT ANOTHER HALF MILE OF TUNNEL LEFT TO GO-WHERE DOES THIS GO?
HAROLD GRAY
THAT'S ONLY A LITTLE GALLERY—SEE? IT ENDS IN THERE A HUNDRED FEET—BETTER STICK TO THE MAIN TUNNEL-
THE DESCENT HERE IS NOT SO STEEP—THE GAS WILL ADVANCE MORE SLOWLY—

ALLEN PLUG CUT TO BACCO
MASON TRACTORS
"ALLEN—MASON"! THEY'LL DO AS WELL AS ANY 9-17
THERE! HOW'S THAT? SEE PRETTY GOOD NOW, EH?
HIS HEAD HEALED BUT HIS EYES HAD FOR SOME TIME GIVEN HIM TROUBLE AND A TRAVELING OPTICIAN FITTED HIM WITH GLASSES
YES, THAT'S MUCH BETTER!
SOME TIME LATER THE KINDLY SHERIFF MADE A SUGGESTION:
MASON, NO ONE 'ROUND THESE PARTS SEEMS TO HAVE EVER KNOWN YOU—I'VE GOT A HUNCH YOU CAME FROM THE CITY! NOW, I'M DRIVING THERE NEXT WEEK ON BUSINESS. HOW'D YOU LIKE TO GO ALONG—SEE WHAT YOU CAN LEARN? AND I'LL HELP YOU GET A JOB IF YOU WANT TO STAY!
—THE BOY THOUGHT WELL OF THE IDEA, WAS GLAD TO GO. HE DIDN'T SEEM TO FIT IN AT ALL IN THAT RURAL VILLAGE! SO THAT, MY DEAR, IS HOW ALLEN MASON CAME TO THIS CITY!

THE SWAGGERS ARE LEAVING THE NEBB HOTEL FOR HOME AFTER AN EXCITING AND NOT ALTOGETHER A PLEASANT VISIT
9-17
SORRY YOU FOLKS ARE GOING—I HOPE YOUR STAY WAS A PLEASANT ONE HERE
YOU CERTAINLY ARE NOT SERIOUS IN YOUR HOPES
YOU KNOW, I HAD THE MOST MISERABLE EXPERIENCE IN THIS HOTEL—I CAN NEVER THINK OF THIS PLACE WITHOUT REGRETTING THAT I EVER CAME HERE
YOUR MISERABLE EXPERIENCE WAS A MATTER OF YOUR OWN CHILD'S MAKING—YOU CAN'T BLAME THE HOTEL FOR THAT

Appearing before a suburban peace justice for failing to observe a boulevard stop sign, Wood said, "I had to sneeze just as I approached the intersection and my head was down as I went through." He was fined $5.

AIRCRAFTS GET MILD PLAY IN HIGHER MARKET

Consolidated Dividend Attracts Attention To Aviation; Trading Quiet.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Aircraft manufacturing stocks got a mild play in a generally quiet and higher market today.

Attention was drawn to the aviations by the declaration of a $2 cash and 100 per cent stock dividend for Consolidated Aircraft. This issue was active and up more than a point near the second hour.

Market men who follow business statistics noted that the weekly figures for output of electric energy, while establishing a new record in a rebound from the Labor Day period, still had advanced less than was to be expected at this time of year.

Those interested in the oil companies and their shortages of transportation facilities to the great eastern seaboard market conned the weekly statistics of the American Petroleum Institute showing a 447,000 barrel decline in east coast gasoline supplies and a total decline of the country's gasoline running to more than a million barrels.

"No Child of Mine will ever get WORMS!"

Don't be so sure, Mother!

Anybody, anywhere, can have roundworms! Yes, and the ugly creatures may be living inside your child right now, starting trouble, without your even knowing it. If your child is pale, underweight, nervous, has an uneasy stomach, picks at nose or seat — these ugly roundworms may be at work.

Play safe! Get Jayne's Vermifuge at once. It acts very gently, yet expels stubborn worms. And if no worms are there, it acts just as a mild laxative. Jayne's is America's best known proprietary worm medicine, used by millions, for over a century. Demand Jayne's Vermifuge! At all drug stores.

TWO DAMAGE SUITS FILED

Seek Judgment of $8,851 as Result of Accident In City Last June.

Two damage suits for a total of $8,851 were filed today in Richland county common pleas court as the result of a traffic accident last June 21 at Harker and Bowman streets.

The actions, which name John Schag of the Sacred Heart seminary, near Shelby, as defendant, seek judgments for injuries received by William Earl Liggett, Butler, R. D. 1, and Georgia Shisler, Mifflin, when the car in which they were passengers figured in a collision with one driven by Schag. The plaintiffs were riding with Jerry Liggett.

They contend Schag failed to stop at the intersection and that he was driving 50 miles per hour. The traffic light was not operating at the time of the accident, the petitions state. Liggett asks $5,351 and Miss Shisler, $3,500. Attys. John C. O'Donnell and H. M. Rust represent the plaintiffs.

EXTEND COURSE

School Board Acts To Keep Defense Classes.

National defense training classes at Mansfield Senior high school will be continued for another 12 weeks beginning Sept. 22, the board of education decided last night.

The board authorized a new class in sheet metal work due to an increasing demand for metal workers in the Mansfield area. Classes in seven subjects will be conducted on a 24-hour schedule, some for three-hour periods and others lasting six hours.
